

In Support of Orville Chubb
For Edmonton Public School Trustee in 2013

August 23, 2013

I have known Mr. Orville Chubb for over fifteen years as a basketball official and administrator for the Edmonton Basketball Officials Association. As president of EBOA, Mr. Chubb held his position that required knowledge, tact, leadership, foresight, daring and compassion of which I have witnessed over the years in working with him on the executive.

In his professional working capacity of being Publisher of the Avenue Magazine in the greater city of Edmonton, I found him to be a diplomat, an innovator, a protector of values, a consummate business person, and a natural educator.

In my previous experiences with education and working with trustees of Edmonton Public Schools, I believe a trustee is a person who must plan for the future of education, keeping a delicate balance between the best of the new while not forgetting the excellence of the past.

It is indeed rare to find these qualities in a single person, and that is why I give my total support to Orville Chubb, a person who exemplifies all of these values for education with our students and the stakeholders in the Edmonton community.
